HISTORY AND NEED

In 1983, an interagency group joined forces to develop a new tool to help Montana local governments finance public facilities. The interagency group included the Department of Commerce, Office of the Lieutenant Governor, the Department of Administration, the Montana Association of Counties, and the Montana League of Cities and Towns.

Montana communities and counties were struggling with needs to repair or replace aging public facilities, yet tax revenues and other financial resources were declining. The Governor's Task Force on Infrastructure reported that Montana's community public facility needs were in excess of 8 billion dollars. These needs included such critical facilities as safe drinking water systems, safe roads, sewage treatment (disease prevention), and many other types of public facilities.

There was a statewide demand for better information on sources of money to construct or repair public facilities. Montana local government officials, engineers, consultants, and citizens were overloading the state and federal government agencies with requests for information on sources of grants or loans for local public facility projects. A study conducted by the Montana Community Technical Assistance Program found that the 25 major state, federal, and private "referral offices" in Montana receive over 8,000 requests per year from community leaders for information on sources of money for community public facility projects. Unfortunately, information on where to find money for public facility construction and repair for Montana communities was scattered throughout hundreds of government offices located across the nation. It was buried in the annual reports of America's 40,000 private foundations. It was entombed in voluminous hard-to-read statute books and massive agency "program descriptions." Montanans were experiencing these specific problems in terms of locating the needed information:

- * There was no comprehensive information clearinghouse on all sources of public works financial assistance -- both federal and state grants and loans, local government financial options, private foundation grants, etc. For example, grants for public facility projects that were available from the state government had never been compiled in one place; thus, no one knew where all sources of funding for each facility were located.
- * The financial information that was available was not organized by the type of public facility (i.e., grants for airports, loans for sewer systems). However, the local government officials and citizens always asked for the information by the name (type) of the public facility.
- * The available information did not directly list who to contact in Montana. This problem required community leaders and citizens to place phone call after phone call (usually misdirected) to track down the appropriate office.

- * Local government officials and citizens were inevitably and unavoidably given the "run around" -- no one office had comprehensive information. For example, one local official spent over eight hours on the phone to various state and federal agencies trying to locate sources of money for a community park improvement project. One financial researcher spent over 80 hours trying to get information on loans and grants to build a needed retirement home.
- * The inefficiency of this process was costing local, state, and federal agencies and private groups substantial amounts of staff time and money. Because of improper referrals, valuable time was wasted looking for information that either didn't exist or was extremely difficult to find.
- * Montana city and county governments missed sources of money for local public facility construction and repair projects, because local officials never discovered the existence of certain state, federal, and private programs. Community needs for such vital necessities as repairing drinking water systems and building senior citizen centers were not being met.

The interagency group came up with one solution to these problems: develop a central source of financial information, organize the data by the type (name) of public facility, and computerize the data to allow rapid and cost-effective financial research.

Despite budget cuts, the Community Technical Assistance Program of the Montana Department of Commerce provided the money and staff support to develop and manage the new computer system. It was named "The Public Works Money Database" (PWMD or "Database" for short).

Changes and improvements to the system have been made over time. Surveys of people and agencies that use the Database have been conducted. In the most recent survey of Montanans using the Database, 100% of the respondents felt there was a need for the system, and 100% said it saved them time. A significant portion of the Database users said that their project would not have been funded without the critical information and leads provided by the Database.

WHAT IS THE PUBLIC WORKS MONEY DATABASE?

Simply put, the Database is a computerized listing of the key information for each government and private financial program or option that:

1. Grants or loans money for city and county public facility construction and repair projects; or
2. Provides other types of financing for city and county construction and repair projects.

The Database consolidates many formerly separate resources that contained information on money for public facilities. The Database provides the first ever comprehensive and topical listing of both Montana state government and private programs for public facility construction and repair. In addition, the Database consolidates, simplifies, and topically organizes the following public works information: Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance, Montana Codes Annotated, Rural Resource Guide, Foundation Directory, Directory of Montana and Wyoming Foundations, Taft Corporate Directory, etc.

The Database is designed to answer questions such as the following common requests from community leaders:

- * "Do you know of any grants for water systems? We have water lines breaking. The majority of the townsfolk are on fixed incomes."
- * "What are all our options for financing a new flood control dike for our town? We have a serious flooding problem, and the town government cannot raise enough money through mill levies or bonding to pay for the project."
- * "I'm the new staff person for the local County Sewer and Water District. I need to know all the ways to help us pay for our needed sewer repairs."
- * "Can you use a Rural Improvement District to pay for improving a park?"
- * "I've heard that Tax Exempt Lease-Purchase Financing could be used to help us pay for repairing our jail and our library. Who do I call?"
- * "What is Tax Increment Financing (TIF)? We want to build a downtown community center and construct new parking lots. Could we use TIF?"
- * "We need a senior citizen center. Almost 60% of our residents are on fixed incomes. Are there any grants available for building senior centers?"

WHAT KIND OF INFORMATION CAN I GET?

The Database has information on sources of money for the following types of public facility construction and repair projects:

AIRPORTS
ALL PURPOSE
ANIMAL SHELTERS
BIKEWAYS
BRIDGES
BUS SYSTEMS (MUNICIPAL)
BUS SYSTEMS (ELDERLY AND HANDICAPPED)
CIVIL DEFENSE SYSTEMS
COMMUNITY CENTERS
CONVENTION CENTERS
DAYCARE CENTERS
DAMS
DEVELOPMENTALLY DISABLED HOMES
DRAINAGE SYSTEMS
FAIRGROUNDS
FIRE STATIONS
FLOOD CONTROL FACILITIES
GROUP HOMES
HALFWAY HOUSES
HANDICAPPED FACILITIES
HAZARDOUS WASTE DUMPS
HOMELESS SHELTERS
HOSPITALS
JAILS
JUVENILE DETENTION FACILITIES (JDF)
LANDFILLS
LIBRARIES
MUSEUMS
NURSING HOMES
PARKS
PARKING FACILITIES
POLICE STATIONS
PUBLIC BUILDINGS
RAILROADS
RETIREMENT HOMES
SENIOR CITIZEN CENTERS
SEWER SYSTEMS
SIDEWALKS
STREETS & ROADS
STREET FURNITURE
SWIMMING POOLS
TRAFFIC SIGNALS
WATER SYSTEMS

The Database can provide you with:

1. Information by the type of public facility (i.e., all grants for senior citizen centers, all loans for storm drains);

2. Information about each state or federal government public works program (i.e., Who is eligible for the State Revolving Fund Program? What are the strings?);
3. Information on local government finance options. This includes Montana state statute citations and legal opinions for bonds, tax increment financing, development exactions, business improvement districts, etc.;
4. Information about private foundation and corporation grants for public works (i.e., Who is eligible?).

One of the most helpful and unique characteristics of the Database is that for the first time, it is possible for Montanans to get a comprehensive list of financial options for constructing and repairing any single type of public facility. Thus, if you need to find money to construct or repair a senior citizen center, you can ask for and receive a listing of all financial options for paying for senior citizen center construction and repair (See Attachment #1, a partial Database printout for senior citizen centers). Or, if your town needs to add a wing onto the hospital, the Database can provide you with a list of all grants and loans for hospital construction (See Attachment #2). Perhaps your civic club and your town council are working together to find money to improve your community park. You can ask the Database staff for a list of all financial options for parks (See Attachment #3).

The bottom line is that the Database can help you locate money for public facility construction and repair projects. It will provide you with leads which would be almost impossible to find without the Database. It will save you vast amounts of time.

LIMITATIONS OF THE DATABASE

The Database has the following limitations:

1. It only covers those types of public facilities previously mentioned. For example, it does not have information on grants for health services, community festivals, or performing arts.
2. It does not contain mill levy (tax) information.
3. Technical and financial limitations currently do not allow direct access to the Database from outside or remote computers.
4. The Database is designed as a quick referral tool. By design, it does not provide every detail on every program. There is no substitute for calling the program contact person for full details on what they can and cannot do. Complex requirements are only summarized in the Database. Information and requirements are constantly changing.

5. Be aware that grants are not available for every local project. This is not a defect of the Database -- it is simply a recognition of the reality of public works financing. In situations where no grants are available, the Database is even more important because it lists "local control" options, such as bonds and special improvement districts that are always available. These "local control" methods may be your only options.
